XXI. An Account of the Degree of Cold obſerved in Bedfordſhire: By John Howard, Eſq; F. R. S. in a Letter to John Canton, M. A. F. R. S.

SIR,

Read April 12, 1764. I Would beg leave to acquaint you of a degree of cold that I obſerved at Cardington, in Bedfordſhire, the 22d of November laſt: juſt before Sun riſe Farenheit's ſcale by one of Bird's thermometers being ſo low as 10 and $\frac{1}{2}$. If it will throw any light on the locality of cold, or think it worth the Society's obſervation, would leave to your better judgment, and remain with great eſteem,

SIR,

Your moſt obedient ſervant,

John Howard.
